

Freer Gallery, home of great art collection in Washington, nearing completion.

Photo by I. Pridgen, Staff Photographer.

Dressed in bathing suits, they take sun baths all day long. They are the children of Mme. Paul Laforgue (in center) of Paris, who arrived in America a few days ago. The children attracted much attention aboard the S. S. La France on account of their dress.

© Keystone View Co.

A new turban for motoring, fitting the head closely and showing an application of velvet leaves in tones of green upon the upturned petal-edged brim. A soft pink rose is tucked under the right ear of the wearer.

Wide World photo.

Mrs. Benjamin Thaw of Pittsburgh, mother of two American "aces," arriving in New York from France with Broncho, an Irish terrier which belonged to her son, Alexander Blair Thaw, who was killed in an airplane accident at Toul, France, in 1918. Broncho was flying with his master at the time of the accident and was badly injured.

By International Film Service.

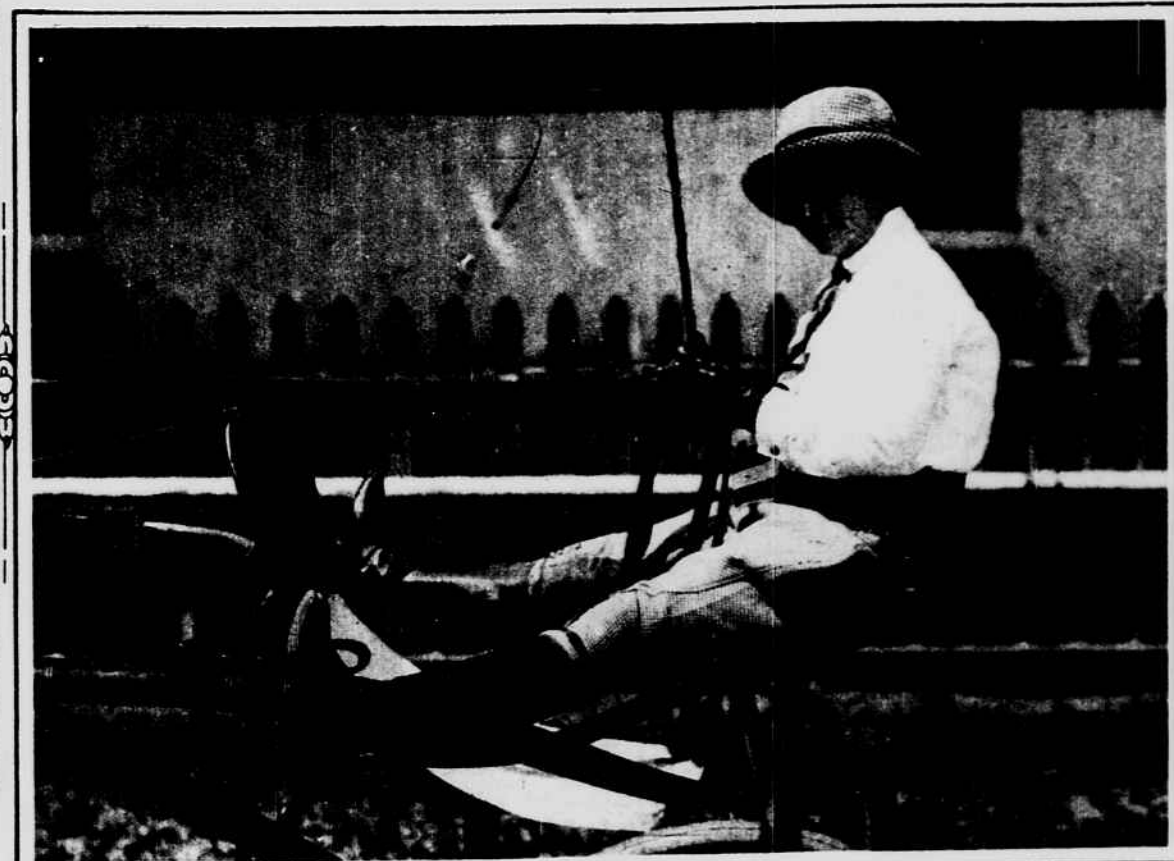

Richard S. Bartelmess, photoplay star, and his bride, formerly Miss Mary Hay Caldwell, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Frank Merrill Caldwell of Washington and New York. Mrs. Bartelmess is known to the stage world as Mary Hay.

Socks and shoes direct from Holland. They are the property of Miss Helene S. Peabody of Los Angeles. Trees and ocean waves form the design of the woven stockings, and the shoes were a part of the trunk of a tree.

By International Film Service.

How milady rode at the fashionable Islip Polo Club horse show, Long Island. Miss Corrine Roth is driving one of her prize horses.

© Underwood & Underwood.